

11 April 2012

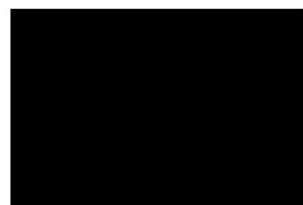

By email

To whom it may concern

I confirm that a BEng (Honours) Energy Engineering degree of the South Bank University, London awarded in July 2002 is a qualification accredited by the Engineering Council.

I further confirm that this degree, in both content and level, meets the programme outcomes for degrees currently recognised under the Washington Accord. I would therefore ask relevant authorities to accept this degree as meeting their professional engineer academic requirement for registration.

For the Engineering Council

Katy Turff
Head of International